GATES BACK IN DARTMOUTH

Cult Voyage All Tragedy

Shiloh's Temple on the Hill was dedicated by "Elijah" Sandford to a "world evangelistic crusade on apostolic principles" to prepare for the second coming of Christ . . .

So, when Governor Cobb of Maine, back in 1905, ordered an investigation of the Society of the Holy Ghost and Us, "Elijah" concluded it was time for the crusade to begin . . . That was yesterday's story. Today's follows:

By GEORGE W. CLARKE

It is ironic that the downfall of the Reverend Frank Weston Sandford, founder of "The Church of the Living God," should have been brought about by a woman . . .

It's ironic because nowhere in any existing record of his church, or his doings, is there a single taint of sex, or a hint of moral dereliction.

Nor was there in the series of events which brought his world crashing about his ears, and sent him to the Atlanta Federal penitentiary.

There couldn't have been, for, certainly, the prim little Mrs. Florence N. Whittaker, mother of four

"Puck" Contest Winners

Again Greater Boston and New England winners take cash prizes in the Boston Sunday Advertiser's $10,000 Hearst Comic Weekly-Puck Puzzle Contest. Turn to story and winners' list on Page 45.

Admitting "maybe I made a mistake," Harrington Kenneth (Heavenly) Gates, 24-year-old grid star who fled Sunday to the seclusion of the "Holy Ghost and Us" cult farm at Amherst, N. H., returned to Dartmouth College today.

He is "through with football forever," he declared. It was the temptation to play football despite his religious scruples that led him to his flight from college to "meditate."

Looking pale and bewildered, Gates found only two college press correspondents and a photographer awaiting him when he returned to campus. He was accompanied by Joseph Holland, head of the cult farm.

He will resume his classes Monday, it was announced.

PHONES TO COLLEGE

Gates talked to college officials by long distance telephone earlier in the day from the home of former Attorney-General Ralph W. Davis of New Hampshire at Manchester. He said:

"I've thought over the advice of my family, and that of the college authorities."

(Although the college officially maintained a "hands off" policy, Dean Lloyd K. Neidlinger told the Boston Evening American yesterday he believed young Gates would be "ruining his life" if he gave up his college career.)

"I've reached the conclusion," Gates said, "that, with so many people—my mother, my friends, the college authorities—all urging me to return, I may be wrong. I want to do the right thing.

"During the past few days, at times I've been almost driven to distraction. I want to thank you

Gunmen Get $500 IN DORCHESTER Holdup

Three youths, two of them with handkerchiefs for masks and all carrying blue-steel revolvers, held up the offices of the Harvard Federal Savings & Loan Association, Washington street, Dorchester, today, and escaped with $500.

Robie F. Parker, Columbia road, Dorchester, treasurer of the association, was talking to George H. Killeen of Hyde Park, a customer, when the three bandits, none of whom appeared to be more than 21, entered.

The leader, who was not masked, but who had a soft hat pulled well down over his eyes, walked over to Parker and Killeen, menaced them wit hhis gun and told them:

"Keep quiet or you'll get plugged. If anyone else comes in, take care of them in the regular way. If you don't you'll get hurt."

Meanwhile, another of the bandits had stationed himself on guard at the street door, and the third was rifling the safe. Stuffing the money from the safe in his pocket, this third man called "O. k!" and all three then ran from the office.

Nearby workmen told police they saw the trio drive away in a car that had been parked about 100 yards from the office entrance. Parker said the whole holdup took little more than a minute.

The holdup is the second bank robbery in Dorchester within two weeks. The Uphams Corner Cooperativ eBank was robbed of $600 in a similar manner.

TYPHOON IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Nov. 4 (INS)—Roaring across the Pacific, a typhoon swept the central Philippine Islands group today and was feared to have caused extensive property damage and loss of life.

9 Monks Seized By Nazi Police

VIENNA, Nov. 4 (INS)—Nazi police today closed the Servites monastery, described as the most important institution of its kind in the Austrian Tyrol, and arrested nine monks, charging them with "immorality and political activity."

Thirty residents of the village where the monastery is located wefe also arrested on similar charges.

In closing the monastery and making the arrests, the Gestapo (Nazi secret police) acted under orders of Joseph Buerckel, Nazi commissioner for Ostmark (formerly Austria).

Woman Struck By Salem Train

SALEM, Nov. 4—A woman, about 60 years old, as yet unidentified, walked backward into a Boston & Maine train at the Norman street crossing here today and was seriously injured.

Apparently, the engineer said, she sought to avoid being struck by automobiles at the busy crossing, and in stepping back did not see the on-coming locomotive.

Only clue to her identity was a card in her pocketbook, bearing the name, "Hitchcock." She was taken to a hospital in an unonscious condition.

Nazi Paper Says U. S. Perils Peace

BERLIN, Nov. 4 (INS)—A scathing denunciation of United States' foreign policy on grounds that it is "sabotaging European peace" was published today by the important Nazi newspaper Boersen Zeitung.

DIARY IGNORED—Brookline court ignores alibi diary of Alice Stevenson, 18, and holds John A. Hendrick, Jr., of Allston in $1000 bail for grand jury action on robbery charge.

Girl's Diary Fails As Holdup Alibi

Without considering further a sweetheart's diary that would have provided an alibi, Judge Samuel A. Rollins in Brookline court today held John A. Hendrick, Jr., 19, of Ashford street, Allston, for the grand jury.

Judge Rollins reduced one charge from armed to unarmed robbery and found probable cause on another charge of larceny of an automobile. He reduced bail from $2500 to $1000.

Hendrick's sweetheart, Alice Stevenson, 18, also of Ashford street, was in court with the disputed diary, as was Miss Elizabeth McCarthy, a handwriting expert who had been engaged by the J. A. Hendrick, Jr. defense to testify concerning entries.

At the opening of the hearing, however, Judge Rollins indicated at a bench conference that he would not hear any additional diary evidence.

The entry on which the defense relied indicated that Hendrick and his sweetheart were together on the evening of Oct. 9, when the robbery occurred, until 1 a. m. The robbery took place at 9:45. Police claimed that some of the entries were made after the defendant was arrested.

Victim of the robbery was Chauncey F. English, 60, of Winthrop road, Brookline. He was putting his car away when a youth he identified as Hendrick approached him, took his overcoat, his wallet containing $30, and the automobile. The car was found later in Brighton, abandoned.

CROSS AT HYDE PARK

Mind Test For Woman 'Firebug'

A mental examination was ordered today by Judge Ralph W. Reeve in Lynn court for Mrs. Florence Abeny, 39, of Baldwin street, Lynn, charged with firing a building to induce her mother to give up work as a chambermaid.

Mrs. Abeny was held for the grand jury in $1000 bail.

Police asserted Mrs. Abeny started four separate fires in the Lynn apartment building where her mother worked as manager and maid, by throwing blazing, oil-soaked rags into closets.

Mrs. Abeny was quoted as saying:

"I wanted to have my mother come back to live with me. I didn't want her to keep on working in that house."

Mrs. Abeny's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Collins, attended the hearing. Mrs. Abeny was taken to Salem Jail.

$50,000 Balm Trial Stirred:

'A Lie!' Cries Mrs. Creedon

Jumping from her seat and shouting "That's a lie!" blonde Mrs. Catherine Viola Creeden dramatically interrupted a Suffolk Superior Court session today.

Her outbreak came after a witness had testified he saw her and Maurice J. Hamilburg, Essex street cafe owner, enter a Back Bay hotel elevator together at 2 a. m, one morning in September, 1935.

A court officer rushed to restrain Mrs. Creeden as Judge Joseph A. Sheehan pounded his gavel.

Regaining her composure, Mrs. Creeden apologized, and testimony was resumed.

The witness was Thomas A. Delay, former stage and night-club partner of Ralph C. "Danny" Creeden, plaintiff in the case on trial.

BOTH SIDES REST

Creeden is suing Hamilburg for $50,000, charging alienation of Mrs. Creeden's affections. She obtained a divorce in 1935.

Both sides rested their cases before recess.

After arguments the suit was expected to go to the jury later in the day.

Defense testimony today was featured by charges that Creeden, before his wife left him, went on long drinking sprees, used marihuana cigarettes and took sleeping powders which once put him 'out" for two days.

A final witness for the plaintiff was Delay, of Cambridge. He was questioned by Attorney John O'Hare, counsel for Creeden.

Q—Do you recall seeing Mrs. Creeden and Mr. Hamilburg together in September, 1935? A.—I do. I saw them in the lobby of the Copley-Plaza Hotel. They entered an elevator and were taken upstairs together.

SHOUTS DENIAL

It was at this point that Mrs. Creeden, a former stage beauty, attractively clad today in severe black, rose from her seat among the spectators and shouted her denial.

After Delay was able to resume his testimony Attorney O'Hare asked him if he had seen Mrs. Creeden and Hamilburg together elsewhere in 1935.

"Yes, at Suffolk Downs," Delay said.

Q—Where was Mrs. Creeden? A—Standing in line at the $10 mutuel window.

BETTY LOU ANNA FRANCOS

Marriage May Give Baby Home

Daddy for Baby 3 Mamas Want

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—It looked today as if 10-months-old Betty Lou Francos—the baby three mothers wanted—might win a real, honest-to-goodness daddy out of the strange court mixup in which she recently figured.

For offers of marriage were pouring in on pretty, trouble-haunted Miss Anna Francos, Betty Lou's mother.

And Miss Francos, working here as a domestic, said she believed she would accept the proposal of one of her wooers.

She said she felt this man was sincere and would give her baby a home and a name and make life happy again for everybody concerned.

Betty Lou was in the custody of welfare authorities at Westport, Ct., today.

A Westport judge, playing the role of a modern Solomon, refused adoption petitions of two women who were battling for the privilege of becoming the little girl's foster mother.

New Bedford Vice Report Due Today

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 4—With the Grand Jury's final report of alleged "illegalities" due today, two more men were under arrest and hundreds of horse and numbers slips were seized in a lottery raid here.

The raid was on the second floor of a Woodlawn street tenement house. It was the second such blow at horse betting parlors in 24 hours.

Are Princeton Faces Red? Well Look at Their Tigers!

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP)—Princeton students' faces were red with rage and the faces of traditional bronze Tigers were red with paint today as the result of an early morning invasion of the campus by Rutgers students.

Nine of the invaders were arrested, released and ordered to return for trial next Monday.

Carloads of Rutgers students cruised around the campus during the night, singing and shouting that Rutgers would beat Princeton tomorrow when the Tiger eleven will go to New Brunswick for the first time in 50 years.

Princeton students went to the top of buildings and fired brickbats and firecrackers in addition to hurling vocal rejoinders. As a climax a group from Rutgers finally daubed red paint on the faces of two stately bronze tigers in front of the Class of 1879 Hall.

At the same time another group of Rutgers lads painted the Tigers in front of Nassau Hall, covered a walk with "Bert Princeton" signs.

O. K. 17 Millions For Hub Homes

A federal loan of $16,924,000 for Boston's proposed four low-cost housing projects had President Roosevelt's approval today, United States Senator David I. Walsh announced at Washington.

The projects will furnish model living quarters for 3123 families, in Charlestown, Roxbury, South Boston and the South End.

Slum clearance work is expected to start before snow flies, after title to the property involved has been obtained at a cost not to exceed $1.50 a foot.

Total cost of the proposed model villages is expected to be $27,000,000.

The Boston Housing Authority, headed by Chairman John A. Breen, expects to obtain further federal funds, in addition to the $16,924,000 already okayed by President Roosevelt.

Boston's request for the federal loan went to Washington late in October, just in time to get under the deadline, set for November 8.

Delay in making the request was caused by repeated refusal of the city council to approve the four projects.

Probe Blast On Nazi Liner

OAKLAND, Calif., Nov. 4 (AP)—Evidence of possible sabotage arose today as six separate investigations were pushed into the sinking of the German liner Vancouver yesterday after a terrific explosion below the waterline.

Efforts were to be made today to raise the 477-foot vessel from a mudbank in Oakland estuary, where she settled stern-down after the blast.

Four members of the crew were injured by the blast. Eight passengers on the ship were not harmed, and called the experience "tremendously exciting."

An exhaustive investigation on the vessel last night by District Attorney Earl Warren, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, and other officials brought a closely-guarded statement from Warren that "we are of the opinion the explosion was not in the engine room or in the ship itself."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The commerce department appointed a board today to investigate the mysterious explosion which sank the German liner Vancouver in the Oakland, Cal., estuary yesterday.

Teacher Drops Fight for Job; Plans to Wed

CHRISTINA ALACH
Bows to Cupid

Miss Christina Alach, 23, the attractive teacher who was dismissed from Medfield High School for taking part in a demonstration in front of the British consulate here, is going to be married, but she won't say who the man is.

And she's giving up the fight for reinstatement, regardless of the feelings of the Civil Liberties Committee and the other organizations seeking to make her an issue in the battle for "liberalism."

Many of her friends supposed her the fiancee of a Back Bay man active in political affairs.

He, however, denied the report he and Miss Alach were planning marriage.

Fred Alach of Framingham, father of the dismissed teacher, said he was as much in the dark as the public in regard to her engagement.

Miss Alach was discharged by the school committee of Medfield after a member identified her picture in a group of demonstrators picketing the consulate because of the Munich agreement.

"While I believe my rights as a citizen were violated by the committee, the fight for reinstatement would be long and costly," Miss Alach said. "If vindicated in the end, it would mean little to me, as I want to marry."

Thousands of admirers of the humorist pressed upon Claremore to attend the services at the $200,000 Will Rogers Memorial Museum.

From Hyde Park to the West Coast, the nation took part in the tribute. President Roosevelt, scheduled to broadcast from Hyde Park at 2 p. m., central standard time, headed the list of speakers.

Jesse Jones, RFC chairman and treasurer of the Will Rogers National Memorial Fund, and Gov. E. W. Marland of Oklahoma were the principal speakers here.

The Rogers family had come home, the widow, Mrs. Betty Rogers; the two sons, Bill and Jimmy, and the daughter, Mary. Mrs. Rogers gave the memorial's 17-acre hilltop site to the state.

Rogers Oil Heir Weds N.E. Girl

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)— Henry Huddleston Rogers, Jr., son of the late H. H. Rogers, multi-millionaire Standard Oil executive, has been married secretly to Diana Taylor, a dancer, for more than a year.

"I'm not saying when or where we were married," he said today at his Bedford village home, "because I don't want to drag her through the mire I've been in."

Bedford village is near Mount Kisco, Westchester County, New York.

"She's too decent," he continued. "She comes of a fine old New England family—has a swell mother. They've got the sense I lack.

GRIEVED FOR EVELYN

"When Evelyn died, I thought I'd die, too," he said, referring to Evelyn Hoey, the showgirl who was shot to death in Rogers' Pennsylvania farmhouse in 1935. "But I didn't know Diana then."

A coroner's jury found that Miss Hoey "died at the hands of a person or persons unknown."

Rogers was married previously to Virginia Lincoln of Cleveland, O., in 1928. They were divorced in 1937.

Mrs. Rogers is a tall, slender blonde with brown eyes and a quiet manner. She smilingly affirmed their secret marriage.

"But I guess most of the people in the village knew it by this time," she said.

PILES UP WEALTH

Rogers said a portrait of his great-great-grandfather, Henry Huddleston of Bedford, Mass., hanging over the mantel in the living room of his white-pillowed colonial farmhouse, was "all I've had so far out of my father's $21,000,000 will."

"But I've managed to live," he said. "Three years ago I started with $10,000 in Wall Street. Now I've got $60,000. Before I was 29 I made half a million, which I invester, not to be touched until I'm 42. I'm 34 now."

Rogers said his wife does the housework, and that he helps with the cooking.

"And we have a darned good time," he added.

At a meeting of New York executives including Barney Balaban, president, Stanton Griffis and Russell Holman, it was decided to send Zukor to Great Britain to develop Paramount productions over there.

President Balaban in making the announcement, said that Paramount officials were delighted that Zukor had consented to take over the European offices, and that the company has great hopes of building up their foreign production under his supervision.

Committee Urges U. S. Gas Tax Repeal

Repeal of the Federal gasoline tax cost motorists of the state quarters of the Massachusetts Petroleum Industries Committee. This tax costs motorists of the state $2,879,300 during the past six months, the committee says.

Congress originally intended to repeal the bill when internal revenue reached a pre-depression level, but, instead, it has been repeatedly extended.

Roosevelt's Air Talk to Review Deal's Progress

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 4 (INS) — President Roosevelt will place the New Deal's record of the past five years before the nation tonight in his political broadcast, he disclosed at today's press conference.

Social legislation, such as the Wagner Labor Act, Social Security aid and care for crippled and destitute children, will be reviewed in connection with the President's appeal to the voters to elect those next Tuesday who are in sympathy with the program.

Primarily, the President is billed to speak tonight as "a voter of New York in behalf of the Democratic ticket in this estate headed by Governor Herbert H. Lehman. This noon, however, he made it apparent that his radio address in good part would be directed to voters everywhere.

On Tuesday, millions of voters in 47 states will choose 35 senators, 432 house members, 32 governors, and a host of state and county officials.

A survey by the Associated Press indicated that about 46,000,000 would vote an "off-year" election, but 5,500,000 below the high mark of the 1936 Presidential race.

In such key states as New York, Pennsylvania and California, where the contests have been growing more heated each day, the turnout may approach 1936 figures.

Sentence Tests Job Law Teeth

In a case regarded as a test of the "teeth" in the unemployment compensation law, John Tedeschi, 35, of Thornton street, Revere, was given suspended sentences totaling three and a half years today in Chelsea court.

Tedeschi was also ordered to make restitution of $105 to the state before January 4.

The suspended sentences were imposed on charges of larceny of seven compensation checks of $15 each. Seven counts of making false statements to the compensation commission were placed on file.

According to testimony, Tedeschi applied for the compensation and received it on the false pretense that he was not earning other money. He did not appeal.

Townsend Pays Visit to Hub

Tanned after a six weeks southern cruise from which he has just returned, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, father of the Townsend plan, made a flying visit to Boston today to consult Congressman Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, leader of his congressional forces.

Congressman Brewster visited Dr. Townsend's quarters at the Statler Hotel for a long conference, after which the doctor left by plane for Washington.

The national Townsend organization is taking no part in the Massachusetts gubernatorial contest, the doctor said, but he expressed a personal leaning toward Leverett Saltonstall, Republican nominee.

"However," he said, "Gov. Curley is in many ways in accord with our plans."

The head of the national old-age pension scheme condemned the California "ham-and-eggs" movement, for $30 every Thursday, for all persons over 50, which is on the California ballot this year.

"I am in sympathy with the motive of these people," said Dr. Townsend, "but their plan is impractical and absurd.

"If they had taken my advice and consulted leading bankers at the start, they would have saved themselves much wasted work, for bankers are not going to take state warrant in place of good money.

"Because of their pitiful plight, these people over 50 are like drowning men clutching at straws. We should not condemn or ridicule them, but should show them sympathy and consideration.

"However, to encourage them in believing that straws will save them would not be kindness. The New Deal has proved to be a bundle of straws which is now disintegrating."

Dr. Townsend saw none of the Massachusetts leaders of either party. He said that 263 candidates for Congress are pledged to the Townsend plan, and if they should all be elected, will constitute a majority.

Murder on Alcatraz

Thrilling Facts--Not Fiction

By P. F. REED

(San Francisco Counterfer Who Has Just Completed a Four-Year Term on Alcatraz)

(Copyright, 1938, San Francisco Examiner and Boston Evening American)

SAN FRANCISCO, No 4 — On the Rock they call him "Phoney Caponey." But not to his face.

They hung the "Phoney" on him and made Capone rhyme with it during the 1936 strike. That was because he wouldn't come in. Maybe he stayed out because he couldn't see where it would get him anything.

More likely, he hung back because the strike wasn't his idea and because he wasn't running it; if he couldn't be the big shot he didn't want any part of it.

So because he was out of it, those in on it gave him a loud-mouthing that went on for four days and nights. They called him "phoney" and "greaseball" and every kind of rat and cat and stool pigeon they could figure out.

They meowed at him and offered to give him his milk. They told him he was as yellow as a punkin.

But he was in the center cell block, where the non-strikers stayed, and they were in the isolation blocks, where the strikers were cooled off. He couldn't see them, and they disguised their voices so he couldn't recognize them. He didn't know who was giving him the cussing.

FOAMED AT MOUTH

He was so mad he foamed at the mouth, and without knowing who he was putting on the spot, kept screaming a wish that he had them on Chicago's West Side.

The funny part of it was that his imaginary massacre took in at least a dozen of his own henchmen. Among those who cussed him the loudest and longest were a lot of hyenas who used to follow him around hoping he'd drop something they could pick up.

AL CAPONE
"Phoney" to Convicts

If you want names, I'll give you Frankie Del Bond and Joe Varsolini and Rocco Belcostro and Peck Mahoney.

Though they called him Phoney Caponey, they were careful to do it, as I say, when he wasn't looking. They knew from experience that he was no phoney when it came to mixing it.

He is over six feet tall, with a pair of shoulders like a Spanish fighting bull, and a chest in the high 40's, and weighing—or did before he made the hospital—about 225 pounds. And it was all man.

There was nothing yellow about

Crippled Boy's Pet Dog Dying; Needs New Pal

Gloom hangs over the home of 10-year-old Raymond Collins, of Hancock street, Cambridge, today, all because "Poodles," two-year-old Spitz, is going to die.

The dog was taken to the Angell Memorial hospital two weeks ago, stricken with distemper. Hospital officials today said the dog was going to die.

News of "Poodles" doom caused the relapse of young Collins, partly crippled as a result of a brain operation sometime ago.

Because of his condition and his continued yearning for his pet dog, doctors are fearful for the youngster.

CONSTANT COMPANIONS

The friendship between Raymond and "Poodles," developed when the former was recuperating from a serious operation two years ago.

Day in and day out, "Poodles" remained loyally by his master's bedside. They spent many happy hours together.

Raymond was beginning to get back to health again, and both played in the Collins' backyard.

The sad day came, however, two weeks ago, when the youth's mother was told by a veterinarian that the dog should be put to death because he was suffering a serious dog disease.

WHO WILL GIVE A DOG?

Mrs. Collins, a widow receiving mother's aid from the City of Cambridge, knew her son would be heart broken if he lost his chum. She appealed to the Angell Memorial to save the dog's life.

It was useless—doctors said the dog would not live.

And now the mother is worried over what effect the dog's death might have upon her son.

She hopes some kind-hearted person will give her crippled son a dog, to replace "Poodles," and give the boy a new pal.

'Paper' Bride's Folks Offer Aid

Arlington relatives of pretty Dorothy Clark Wells, whose "paper wedding" and honeymoon led her to a Long Island jail on worthless check charges, today prepared to go to New York and aid in her defence.

"She's innocent—if she did pass any worthless checks as the police say, she didn't know they were bad ones," said her friends.

For many years the girl made her home with her uncle, George D. Clark of Wall street, Arlington and had scores of friends in that town and in Boston.

It was her desire to be married in the same church where she had been baptized and taught Sunday school that brought her decision to come to Arlington for the ceremony.

Her husband is Herbert Wells, 35, of Long Beach, L. I., who has been married and divorced previously.

Mrs. Wells' loyal friends asserted that when she paid the minister who performed the ceremony and climaxed the nuptials with an elaborate reception in a Back Bay hotel, using allegedly worthless checks, she did so in the belief that her husband had sufficient funds in the bank.

"She said Herbert had been saving up for a lavish wedding reception and that he wanted it that way," the girl's uncle stated.

2 Liners to Land 71 Here Sunday

Two liners carrying hundreds of homeward bound tourists were coming to the port of Boston today.

The Transylvania, out of Glasgow, will land 33 passengers at Pier 4 East Boston, at 12:30 p. m. Sunday. The Scythia, from Liverpool, will land 29 passengers in East Boston at 5 p. m. Sunday.

'Count' Admits He Was Waiter; Title 'Phoney'

Rooming in the South End and eating table d'hote dinners in Boston hotels to give way of building up the pose it turns to that as a Danish count.

Police say they have a confession from Count Gustave Frederich von Brandenberg that his title is strictly bogus.

Locked up in Charles street jail on a charge of larceny of $30,000 from William Handschumacher, who lives in Cambridge and runs a pork products business in Boston, the "Count" is not only awaiting trial on criminal charges but faces deportation.

It is expected a move to get him out of the country will be made on Tuesday.

Sergeant-Detective Patrick Flannery of the B. C. I. is said to have obtained the confession.

Even if it is true, the "count" is still a man of mystery, for the places he has gone and the things he has done don't jibe with a waiter's wages, however glorified.

Flannery said the prisoner stated he brushed elbows so often with the rich and cultured he acquired a veneer that enabled him to mingle with them once he assumed his pose as "Count."

When he was a waiter, according to Flannery, the bogus nobleman went under the name of Gustave Frederich.

U. S., Britain Join In Drive on Japs

By International News Service

The fate of China today became the outstanding world problem of immediate and anxious concern to the great powers of three continents as Japan indicated an intention to scrap the nine-power treaty guaranteeing China's territorial integrity.

Both the United States and Great Britain mobilized a diplomatic defense of the treaty.

Developments today were

TOKYO: Japan's government definitely considered abrogation of the nine-power pact. The international guarantee would be replaced by a "three-power pact" among Japan, China and Manchukuo. The press laid down a barrage of denunciation of the nine-power treaty. Semi-official circles foresaw a drive for "world equality of opportunity for Asiatics."

WASHINGTON: The United States flatly rejected Japan's claims to exclusive economic and political hegemony in Eastern Asia. Secretary Hull's note to Japan against unwarranted interference with American rights in China will remain the basis of American policy. Washington was said to be canvassing other powers with a view toward an economic "quarantine" of Japan.

LONDON: The British government, worried by Japan's Asiatic "Monroe Doctrine" policy, sought to line up the signatories of the nine-power treaty in a joint move resisting abrogation of the pact. Consultations were under way with France, America and other nations interested in China.

BERLIN: The press displayed keen interest in the new Japanese policy. Officials were said to be watching developments which might affect German economic interests, but there was no official comment.

U. S. Surveys All Unused Plants

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 4 (INS)—The government plans to utilize all possible federally-owned plants now idle in connection with its realignment of national defenses, President Roosevelt declared today.

He revealed that the New Orleans navy yard and the West Virginia armor plate plant would be re-opened—but said he was not yet prepared to disclose to what purpose the two plants would be put to other than that the West Virginia plant would not manufacture armor plate.

At the same time, the President let it be known the government was evolving plans to speed up actual construction of the new navy.

The administration is not satisfied with the length of time which elapses between congressional appropriation of money and completion of a fighting ship's construction, he said.

Mr. Roosevelt, declared a survey of all land and all unused plants, owned by the government is being made.

Hint Lindbergh To End Exile

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was described by close friends today as carefuly considering a termination of his voluntary European exile.

They said the flier was resolved to retain his United States citizenship and that at no time, since he decided to leave the United States three years ago, had he abandoned hope his stay abroad would be other than temporary.

In proof of Lindbergh's pride of American citizenship, they pointed to the care with which he saw to it that his youngest son, Land Morrow Lindbergh, was registered as an American citizen.

The baby was born May 12, 1937, in a London nursing home

U. S. Opens Drive On Book Ring

Working in connection with a nation-wide drive by federal authorities to wipe out a ring of publishers and distributors of obscene literature, postoffice inspectors were busy throughout Greater Boston today.

Acting under Chief Inspector John J. Breslin, the investigators were gathering evidence of the ramifications of the racket which will be presented to the federal grand jury next Tuesday.

It was learned that the Federal men have located the presses from which the country has been flooded with obscene short stories, novels and magazines, and plan to seize the plant this week-end.

Several months ago Boston police made a similar drive, securing a number of convictions.

Wins Championship Of Corn Huskers

Balko tore through the mud on the J. N. Jensen farm while thousands of rural Americana premier sport event, cheered and yelled.

Senate Vote Probers Uphold Van Nuys Move

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Senate campaign expenditures campaign expenditures committee approved today the action of Senator Van Nuys (D) of Indiana in turning over to the Indiana Democratic state committee $2402.15 contributed to his re-election campaign by 24 federal employes.

Chairman Sheppard (D) of Texas said Van Nuys' move was accepted by the committee as "evidence of good faith" in complying with its ruling that it is against the law for a senatorial candidate or his campaign committee to receive political donations from federal employes.

Van Nuys communicated with the committee, Sheppard said, as soon as he learned of the ruling, and held the funds separate until he was informed that the committee would approve his turning them over to the state organization.

The committee has ruled that there is no prohibition against federal employes contributing to state or national party committees.

Similar approval probably would be given, Sheppard added, should Senator Bulkley (D) of Ohio also a candidate for re-election follow Van Nuys' course.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4 (AP)—Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio Works Progress administrator today asked the Senate campaign expenditures committee if it would investigate Republican attempts to coerce project workers.

The committee announced yesterday in Washington that it was sending investigators into Ohio to probe Republican charges that Democrats were politically coercing WPA workers.

Four Confess To Cremating

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—The district attorney's office today announced murder charges would be pressed against four alleged members of a "kidnap syndicate" accused of slaying Arthur Fried, White Plains business man, and abducting two Brooklyn residents who were released after ransom payments.

At the same time officials announced that part of a human jawbone with several teeth still intact had been found by police in the basement of Ukrainian Hall, an East Side social establishment, where one of the kidnappers said Fried's body was cremated in a furnace.

A quantity of bones, including vertebrae, were found to be those of animals.

Fried was kidnaped last December 4 and killed according to the confessions four days later.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph Rosenblum announced the four prisoners who confessed were Dominic Gale, 30, William Jackson, 27, and John Virga, 31, arrested Tuesday by federal agents, and Joseph Stephen Strenda, 25, recently sent to Sing Sing prison for parole violation.

Curley, Saltonstall Tell Election Aims

The Boston Evening American today presents another in the series of articles concerning the aims, ambitions and plans of the Democratic and Republican candidates for governor, James M. Curley and Leverett Saltonstall.

The articles will be published during each of the remaining days of the campaign.

Mr. Saltonstall is writing his own statements. The Curley articles are furnished by the Democratic State Committee.

By LEVERETT SALTONSTALL

How can we retain Massachusetts industry and bring new industry to Massachusetts to provide the opportunity which the young must have unless we have honest government?

How can labor receive its right to share of the profits without destroying?

How can we provide real jobs at real pay for our unemployed unless we assure industry that there will be no payoff?

We have to look only at the industrial and employment statistics for the City of Lawrence to see many of the difficulties which industry is now facing.

From 1929 to 1935 there was a decline of about $5,000,000 in annual wages in the woolen and worsted goods industry and the value of the products in that city has decreased about $45,000,000.

[illegible] is just [illegible] 45 manufacturing [illegible] gone out of business.

INVESTMENTS SHRUNK

Capital [illegible] in manufacture in Lawrence has dropped from $[illegible] to $[illegible]. Annual wages paid in the manufacturing [illegible] have shrunk from $21,000,000 to $[illegible]. Thousands upon thousands are unemployed throughout the city.

What a tragic situation. It must not be continued. I am fully prepared to give this city decent wages for the people of Massachusetts.

[illegible] to support as one of his [illegible] who would be a real [illegible] of labor and whose [illegible] for [illegible] would be [illegible] interested [illegible] of every [illegible] Commonwealth [illegible].

[illegible] to see that we have [illegible] of the unemployed in this city. We shall handle the problem of [illegible] part of [illegible].

HONEST ACTION

I know the people [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] honest [illegible] Democratic [illegible] also [illegible] in the Water [illegible] Power [illegible] Department [illegible] of the people of Lawrence [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] would [illegible] four years [illegible] of the Commonwealth.

By THE DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE

The Republican leadership in Massachusetts, although it is now rendering lip service to certain of the Roosevelt policies such as the WPA and old-age assistance - lacks the courage and the honesty to endorse Franklin D. Roosevelt and his humanitarian program.

Republican leadership at best is just as reactionary and will degenerate as it was under Hoover. Steeped in the ways of a dead and gone philosophy of government and economics, it would forget all that Roosevelt has done.

All it needs is the chance, and it is fighting desperately and ruthlessly to get that chance - Massachusetts Leverett Saltonstall and the Little inner circle of bankers, corporation directors and tax exempt bondholders who are directing his campaign claiming everything in the hope that enough of it will stick [illegible] to enable them to win - would gladly tear the torch from Franklin D. Roosevelt's hand and plunge this state and this nation back into the Dark Age of industrial feudalism.

As in every age, the torch bearers are still denounced as visionaries; still reproached, hated scorned and vilified.

Franklin D. Roosevelt has done more in six short years, to liberalize the laws, the customs and the thought of America than any man before him had done in a [illegible] time.

FREED LABOR

As Lincoln struck the shackles from the slave, so Roosevelt has freed labor from [illegible] and given it a new Charter of Liberty. He has given work to millions of the unemployed.

He has rescued them from the [illegible] curse of idleness and out of the [illegible] of their labor and self-respect he has built roads and bridges, schools and playgrounds and a thousand other great works for public service.

Last, most important and most heartening of all, he has taken the first step that is destined to free us from the haunting paralyzing fear of independence and want in our old age.

The AMERICAN THOROUGHBRED... Game to the Core!

DATING from prehistoric times the horse has been recorded on the pages of time as the loyal friend, companion and servant of man

He has shared with mankind the victories and defeats of civilization's onward march. The horse has held a soul-stirring place in the history of military action. Noteworthy is that famous plunge into the jaws of death by man and horse during the Crimean War—"The Charge of the Light Brigade."

The first horses of modern historical record on this continent came with the Conquistadores under Cortes, and the successors of their line have played a brilliant role in the theatre of exploration and development of the Western World

The American Indian, at first afraid of this new beast, soon discovered his utility and loyalty. As a means of transportation and communication, he was indispensable in the days of American Colonial expansion and the subsequent period prior to the development of the steamboat and locomotive.

Despite the trend toward an almost complete motorized age, there are more horses in this country today than ever before in its history—thanks to racing!

Suffolk Downs in the four years of its existence has committed itself to the definite policy of fostering only that which is best for the future of Thoroughbred horse racing. It occupies an enviable place among the race tracks of the country; from racing is derived more than 54% of the state's share for assistance to aged citizens. Pledge your faith, interest and loyalty to the continued improvement of Thoroughbred horse breeding by voting "YES," on Referendum Number 4, on Election Day, November 8.

$50,000 Balm Trial Near End

Q—Where was Hamilburg? A—Standing nearby.

Under cross-examination by Attorney John J. McVeigh Dolley admitted that he had made statements to aid his friend and for that stage frightener Creeden.

Q—Didn't you frame up this elevator story to help Creeden? A—Most certainly not.

Q—When you and Creeden used to go to all those baseball games together in 1935 and 1936 he wasn't still wailing about his lost Viola, was he? A—No.

Cross-examination by Attorney McVeigh left Mrs. Creeden and Hamilburg denied the hotel elevator story.

They both denied improper relations.

Elsie Ward, sister of Mrs. Creeden, testified Creeden drank to excess while he and her sister were living together.

TELLS OF LOAN

On one occasion, the witness said, Creeden was intoxicated for four days, wearing a bathing suit all that time.

On the last day, a Sunday, he came out on the porch and stripped off the bathing suit as she and Mrs. Creeden were going to church, the sister testified.

The sister testified Creeden used to give his wife 15 cents a day for her meals.

"When I finally lent Viola $10, Mr. Creeden took it and went to Nahant to sit in a dice game," the sister told the jury.

Q—Did you ever see Creeden strike your sister? A—Yes, when they were living in Belvidere street.

Q—Was Creeden drunk? A—No, he was under the influence of marihuana cigarettes.

Q—How do you know that? A—Creeden told me.

Plan U. S. Honor For Mundelein

ROME, Nov. 4 (AP)—Ambassador William Phillips announced today that the United States government would pay extraordinary honors to George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, when he arrives here to report to Pope Pius on the New Orleans Eucharistic Congress.

On instructions from President Roosevelt, Phillips will meet Cardinal Mundelein at Naples tomorrow, when he lands from the liner Rex and the cardinal will be the guest of the ambassador and Rear Admiral Henry E. Lackey, commander of the United States Mediterranean fleet, until he reaches Rome.

It will be the first time such honor has been paid to an American cardinal on a visit to the Vatican. It was explained that the honors were requested by the President because of the high esteem in which Mundelein is held by both Catholics and non-Catholics in America particularly in the Middle West.

The Vatican is sending Undersecretary of State Monsignor Giovanni Montini and the Pope's papal secretary Monsignor Diego Venini to greet the Chicago cardinal, who served as papal legate at New Orleans.

Phillips is to be accompanied by Edward L. Reed, counselor of the embassy and Captain Thaddeus Thompson Jr. as aide.

Immediately after leaving the Rex, Cardinal Mundelein is to be taken by Admiral Lackey's launch to the cruiser Omaha where a [illegible]

Talk Peace, Expect War

H. R. Knickerbocker, famous writer, special for International News Service, in the fifth of a series of articles evaluating results of the Munich accord, today predicts that during the present truce with Germany neither Britain nor France may be able to catch up with the superior military position of the third Reich.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (INS)—The arms race has now entered the last desperate phase, but the grim prospect looms today before Britain and France that they may never be able during the present truce to catch up with the superior military position Germany won at Munich.

That is the essential reason for the despair gripping the hearts of the British and French people.

The present governments of Britain and France privately are convinced contrary to every public statement they make that the War is inevitable.

They believe Hitler is going to make more and more demands until he forces the issue and that when the war comes it will be a far worse war than the war averted at Munich.

There are three main causes for [illegible] Britain and France, though they would [illegible] they would [illegible] war [illegible] and the end would be another [illegible]

ALLIED STRATEGY

Second cause was the desire of the [illegible] to the French [illegible] to [illegible] see the white European [illegible] served by allowing Nazi Germany to fight it out with Bolshevik Russia.

Hitler [illegible] while the [illegible]

Third cause was the British and French military unpreparedness, and the fear of air bombardment.

The French, at the moment of crisis, discovered with horror that their airplane production was actually [illegible] compared to Germany's [illegible]

HITLER ATTITUDE

Since Munich Hitler and his [illegible] spokesmen have [illegible] and contemptuous [illegible] that Germany intends to keep at least the [illegible] of advantage. As M. De Kerillis the Right wing Parisian journalist puts it:

"What Herr Hitler means to say is this: 'You British and French fools who trembling handed over to me the fortress of Czechoslovakia, did you really imagine that I was going to leave you alone so that you could rebuild Britain and France, train millions of soldiers and manufacture new tanks and airplanes?

"'I command that henceforward things shall remain as they are. I have got ahead of you and I forbid you to try to catch me up.

"'No conscription in Britain, if you please!'

"'And France, you must continue to produce your 50 airplanes a month.

"'When I took Czechoslovakia I got you where I wanted you. Now you can stay there!'"

Wild Ride Saves Kidnaper From Gas Execution

JEFFERSON CITY Mo Nov 4 (AP) Three automobiles won a sprint race against time early today to obtain a writ of error and prolong the life of Oscar Ralph Ashworth confessed kidnaper for at least 10 months.

The attorneys drove from St Joseph 50 miles through a blinding rain storm reporting their progress by telephone to Warden J Frank Ramsey at the state prison.

Guy Stivers deputy supreme court clerk waited in his office to sign the necessary papers to save Ashworth from the states lethal gas chamber.

Originally scheduled to die at midnight Ashworth who pleaded guilty to kidnaping a 7 year old St Joseph girl was given an hour's delay when his lawyers notified the warden they had been delayed by the rain.

They arrived and the papers were signed at 12 30 a m.

The dramatic last minute race to save Ashworth gave Byron King a convicted slayer an added 90 minutes of life.

King entered the gas chamber at 1 24 a m and was pronounced dead seven minutes later.

Unknown Boy Scores Triumph as Violinist

NEW YORK Nov 4—A 17 year old Hungarian boy, Robert Virovai, today had made a career for himself with 25 minutes of violin playing in Carnegie Hall as soloist with the Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra.

He came on the stage unknown to the audience except for a short note on the program saying he was born in 1921 and this was his American debut.

But when he finished, the audience shouted bravos, and refused to budge until he had returned a half dozen times. Then Robert went back to his dressing room to try to tell conductor John Barbirolli what beautiful accompaniment he had given the Vieuxtemps D Minor concerto.

Robert had difficulty in this because Barbirolli speaks almost no German, and Robert speaks almost no English.

The fact that there was no advance trumpeting made the youth's success all the more notable. A youngster standing 4 feet 9 inches tall in his first concert tuxedo, walked out of the wings and had a job.

Stolen Ride Drive on

Pledge not to steal rides on trolley cars or buses is taken by group of Roxbury youngsters. Patrolman John F. Barrett and Elevated Inspector John J. Callahan supervise in drive to stop dangerous practice.

This Is Why Drive Is Needed

Rides on backs of street cars will not be stolen by Edward Finn, he tells Patrolman Barrett of Roxbury as Elevated Inspector Callahan looks on. Drive, backed by Boston Evening American, is under way to lower accident toll from this dangerous practice.

"MONEY TALKS!"

The Editor Says: The artist's picture, aptly titled "Money Talks!", interests every man and woman who will cast a ballot on Tuesday.

The International Master Ladies Hairdressers' Association scolds Greta Garbo for being indifferent to this decree for wearing it [illegible] falling after Mrs. Roosevelt smilingly [illegible] amused judging from the press pictures. So does Norma Shearer.

His [illegible] were [illegible] of many [illegible] and [illegible] were built [illegible] Versailles. [illegible] in a while he thought he had them licked but soon there would be a new outbreak of tall coiffures.

Louis quit and the women went on wearing their hair higher and higher. This went on until 1714 [illegible] then came to the French court a beautiful, charming and mischievous little lady, the Duchess of Shrewsbury, wife of the British Ambassador. She was a captivating little person, and whatever she approved the [illegible] wore. Around her six [illegible] were built a low coiffure.

HERE IS ANOTHER: After the New England hurricane, the loss of old trees seemed more tragic than the sweeping away of homes. Trees give us [illegible] connection with our race heritage as were the ruins of those ancient [illegible].

Trees and treasure [illegible] two of a man's links of [illegible] to ancient behavior which could be found in any edition of any newspaper. These superstitious roots of the race life somehow gave us encouragement in a hour of calamitous courage and the fear of despair. No longer [illegible] which ever [illegible] I have ever [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible].

'Bugs' Baer Says:

HE IS A CHEAT and a bounder. Fine feathers make fine birds and Baltimore will furnish the tar. Nobody is sure of his correct name. But Baltimore will chisel all his 15 aliases on his tombstone if it is sure it has the right smoker.

INSPECTOR BYRNES regrets the attraction [illegible] foreign lords for [illegible] susceptible young Americans and feels that there should be a spirited protest against the practice. Especially, when swindlers like Courtenay-Clinton-Devon-Beresford-Vane-Maxwell are around. If he had one pony he would be a polo team.

It's All Luck When You Buy a Seabiscuit

By DAMON RUNYON

MONEY cannot buy [illegible] Love, [illegible] happiness [illegible] a great race horse. You have to have a barrel of luck to acquire these things, especially the great race horse.

Take that Seabiscuit [illegible] War Admiral match race that kicked up so much excitement in Baltimore the other day and produced thousands of words in the newspapers. The winner Seabiscuit was sold for $8000 by such horse experts who expected a fortune from [illegible] a good race horse.

Charles Ogden Mills was one of those owners. He and his wife, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, owned [illegible] the name of the Wheatley Stable. They had some good [illegible] but never a truly great [illegible].

MR. MILLS would have given [illegible] to own a horse like [illegible]. In fact, he would [illegible] the money he had put into race horses well spent if he had found a horse half as good as Seabiscuit, now worth [illegible] of $4,000 and worth $200,000 as he stands if he is worth a nickel. Mr. Mills was a genuine racing enthusiast.

Well, then, you ask, why did they sell Seabiscuit for a sum that now figures as a mere pittance compared to the value of the horse? The answer is they did not know how good Seabiscuit was going to be, and proportionately to his performances up to the time of the sale, $8000 was a fair price.

However, we have been told that the element of friendship entered to some extent into the sale. As we understand it Mr. Howard, then a newcomer to racing, was a friend of Mr. Mills, who wanted to see the San Francisco man launched on his turf career with a good horse, or at least a good prospect, and that is why he let him have Seabiscuit.

It is a characteristic of the average rich horse owner that when he sells a horse it is apt to be a fair horse.

Of course not even [illegible] would [illegible] any [illegible] and [illegible] a horse as great as [illegible] turned out and [illegible] where [illegible].

[illegible] Widener [illegible] man who would [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I MANAGE to be fairly friendly with most types of human specimens, a fact of a pretty serious nature to myself. But there is one variety of Homo Sap which I find it hard to view my fellowmen's best relative. I refer to that specimen of Snow Job which current slang has spliced to the word "Smarty Pants."

There is nothing new about Smarty Pants in general. They are as old as the human race and as common as warts . . . and most of us have served time in their ranks. But the Smarty Pants strain is peculiar to the 20th Century.

Under the common garden variety of Smart Head the Smarty Pants is not primarily concerned with grabbing the spotlight for himself by most kick someone else in the shin while so doing.

YEA MAN the Smarty Pants is certainly handy to have around. When a bad break has let the air out of the balloon and exposed the fabric to the biting wind, he can be depended upon to blow up a few of those cheery words. He will say that the mother of a motherless baby is glowing at the sight of her first tooth . . . or even believe in private "Ha Ha" success the Smarty Pants friend will have a few words of comfort for the bitter loser.

What can be done? Are there any cures? Is it best to keep on trying to wring his neck? I don't know. I refer the question to Mr. Dorothy Canfield's recent advice to Miss Eleanor Roosevelt's critics.

In case you missed this recent contribution to the world's wisdom, Mr. Fisher, being in a sympathetic mood, wrote a letter to the press in which he told Mrs. Roosevelt to take a full view of her critics and proceed to do so by developing a "private sense of humor known only to herself."

Please to please remember by comment be mimicked the simple technique and philosophy of the First Lady of the Land. Even to select a characteristic comment as the following:

"A courteous telegraph boy on a Uniontown doorstep was to the right route . . . such nice boys telegraph boys . . . I've always liked them."

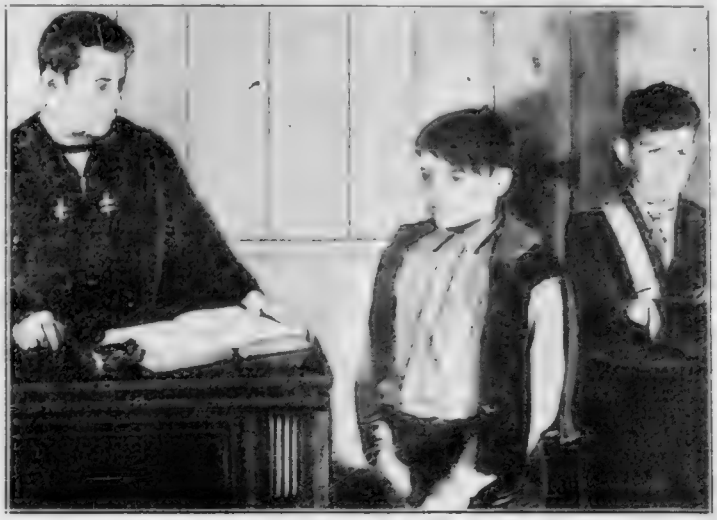
BEFORE PROCEEDING further, let me explain that Mr. Carter, I am told, was born in Europe, educated in Cambridge, and did not become an American until 1933. So he possibly may have escaped the contaminating taint of our chivalrous attitude toward Nice Ladies in general and Presidents Wives in particular.

But me—I'm just a native-born mutt, still ineffably sentimental after 20 years of column writing. So having no superior traditions to maintain I can come right out smack and state that I like telegraph boys whether they're courteous or not and I'm a million strong for that grand person Eleanor Roosevelt. She may not be a literary light. I wouldn't know. But I can tell you this—

When it comes to nursing a heart-broken woman courage to stand by her sick and desperate man—or nerve enough to march with her sick boy to the table which may prove his doom . . . Eleanor Roosevelt HAS WHAT IT TAKES!

I'll wager that her quiet courage and cheerfulness . . . her democratic friendliness . . . her sturdy sanity . . . have done more to hold this frightened nation steady in the face of chaos than all the Smarty Pants' syndicated sneers!



JUDGE JOE KANE, OF BOSTON'S BOYSTOWN, ON THE BENCH
Kenneth Custau Impersonates a Culprit Being Sentenced. Arresting Officer Stands By.

Girl About Town

by Mary X. Sullivan

BOSTON has a Boystown, we find. It is connected with the Bunker Hill Boys' Club of Charlestown and is one of very few such clubs in the country. Arthur T. Burger, executive director of the Boston Boys' Club, founded it three years ago.

With 1000 registered voters already, and a waiting list of juvenile offenders, committees of citizens and policemen and a judge [illegible] Boystown is probably no idle experiment.

Joe Kane is a former mayor who is now judge of the juvenile court of the Charlestown district. Most juvenile court cases are usually charged with various kinds of bad rules of such offenses as "truancy," "incorrigibility," etc.

But sentences are positive rather than negative. A boy may be sentenced to two hours of cutting weeds for a month. He may choose his own [illegible] is a favorite, and may cut his own lawn instead. If he fails to attend the classes he again comes before the court and certain privileges are taken from him. Final punishment is a trip to jail.

A fifty per cent of all cases. The mayor reports from among his political allies a fine, paid to the Police Commissioner.

There is nothing sissy or holier-than-thou about Boystown. It's a real boys' club, run by boys, for boys. Boys have simply formed themselves into the pattern of organized society. They elect their own officers, make their own laws, have set fines and penalties, as you and I do. It's a democracy.

THE FLUSH of enthusiasm of the project has [illegible] knew of the annual outbreak of colds which [illegible] Thanksgiving has not [illegible] as yet. [illegible]

[illegible] we would not have it for the world. [illegible] to hear their tongues wag, because [illegible] Because of that, and the fact [illegible] the country State Federation of Women's Clubs [illegible] a crop of [illegible] turkeys from last Thanksgiving's [illegible]

New York Cavalcade

CASUAL FRAGMENTS: Rarest tribute to the late John D. Rockefeller is his son's gentle request that the "Jr." be retained after his name . . . I saw pink-cheeked, wisp-mustached Paul Whiteman as he paused in front of a wigmaker's atelier in the 50's recently—and studied the handsome toupee on display . . . I know just how he felt—but neither of us has the nerve! . . . And now it is Sinclair Lewis who has been nipped by the bug embarking upon a stage career to play the role of doctor—a career yearned for in early youth—but denied to him in later years . . . Goethe said: "An actor should take lessons from a painter and a sculptor" . . . Perhaps if he had known Lewis Irvin Cobb, Robert Benchley and Alec Woollcott he would have added "and a writer" . . . Or, perhaps, he would not have said that after all.

UNHERALDED PERSONALITIES of Manhattan's night scene: Shoelace Mary and her robust wails—usually stationed near Gallagher's, on West 52nd . . . Bobby Cicero newsboy 20 years at 50th and Broadway calls notables by their first names.

COMMODORE NICK KENNY, sailor-poet and radio chronicler, has become the town's official birthday recorder . . . He is most generous . . . In my case, he donates three birthdays a year—but ignores the one on my birth certificate—August 10th . . . Eccentric but talented Manhattanite is Dr. Louis M. Eilshemius, who first attracted attention with his letters to the Voice of the People columns, signed with his name, followed by "Master Mind of the Ages" . . . Eilshemius shuns hand shakes insisting he saves his hands for his art . . . This is what first stamped him as eccentric—but now people aren't quite so sure—for the aloof and discriminating Metropolitan Museum of Art has purchased several of his paintings . . . His greeting card reads in part: "Louis Michael Eilshemius M. A.—Educator, ex-Actor, amateur all-round doctor, Linguist of 5 languages, Dramatist (7 works) Universal supreme Critic, Most wonderful and diverse painter of Nude groups in the World, Philanthropist, saved 20 lives—3 from Suicide!"

SCRIBNER'S, DEDICATING its lead article to a biography of Joseph V. Connolly a New Haven boy who made good, repeats his experience with the late, hard-boiled city editor of the defunct Evening World, Charles Chapin . . . "How much do you want?" snapped Chapin . . . Connolly decided to talk big . . . "Forty dollars," he demanded . . . "Sorry," growled Chapin, "I never hire a man who doesn't think he's worth forty-five."

ONCE I THOUGHT the simplest assignment on a newspaper was that of the editorial writers . . . Nothing to do but comment on some current event . . . Until some years ago on the old Evening Graphic when I was asked to write the editorials during the editor's absence because of illness . . . Fortunately the fellow returned just as I was swaying into a complete mental collapse.

LOUISBURG SQUARE, which for generations has been the center of social life among aristocratic Beacon Hill dwellers, will be the scene of a lively debutante party the evening of November 12. Anne Pearmain, daughter of Mrs. Pierce Pearmain of 9 Louisburg square is coming home from Bennington College that week-end to make her debut at a dance at The Country Club, and preceding the dance Mrs. Pearmain will give the ushers' dinner at her home . . .

CYNTHIA SORTWELL

Dinner guests will include Anne's cousins, Janet Pierce and Joan Curtis, as well as Edith Ekman, Leila Ernst, Edith Sohier Shaw, Ann Millspaugh, Constance Ann MacBride, Dorothy Coffin, Louise Garfield, Joan Lothrop and Caroline Sweet . . . College friends of Anne's who will be among the out-of-town contingent here for the party will include Elizabeth Slaker, Mary Stringer, Muriel Ross, Philadelphia Carpenter and Barbara Vaughn Ball . . .

William Robert Pearmain, brother of the debutante, and William Bond Wheelwright, Jr., will head the ushers.

. . . Nimble Fingers . . .

CYNTHIA SORTWELL is one deb whose fingers are as nimble as her dancing toes . . . in fact, she has such a way with the needle that she has made in almost a minute's notice, 32 little Russian headdresses to deck out her sister debs serving as ushers at the Museum of Modern Art benefit performance of the Ballet Russe Monday night . . . She and Louisa Barbour put their ingenuity and ability to work when they were elected chairmen of the usher group and, after a little research in the library, found pictures of the very headdress they considered decorative enough to suit the Russian motif of the benefit . . . Capone in a fight. He'd waltz into a ben barehanded. Not because he's got guts, but because he's wacky—he doesn't know what fear is.

THREW TOWEL

He showed that a dozen times. In his first beef on the Rock, he tangled with Bill Colyer, an army lifer who had bumped off a man in France.

They were working in the laundry. Colyer feeding clothes into a mangle and Capone folding at the other end. Al told Colyer a time or two that he was feeding too fast that the towels were coming out wet.

When that didn't do any good he wadded up a wet towel and let fly with it and caught Colyer on the puss. Colyer picked up a stool and went for him. Al picked up a bench and ran to meet Colyer. The bench and the stool met in the air, and nobody got hurt, and they turned over the furniture and went at it hot and heavy.

Colyer got in the first punch but Al brushed it off and [illegible] on Colyer's eye. It sent him staggering backward about ten feet and dropped him in a pile of towels.

Colyer came up with a chair for punch but Al would have had all over him like a blanket if the foreman—a free man named Chase—hadn't grabbed Colyer and a couple of guys hadn't grabbed Al.

Any way you figure it Capone won that one. But the doctors [illegible] any champ [illegible] was, he's about 125 has had two dozen fights I know of and never won one.

Then there was that famous scrap Al had with Jimmy Lucas [illegible] Lucas I think they call him, who is about as [illegible] 11-year-old schoolgirl. [illegible] has been used as a [illegible] as a real, tough thug, but let me tell you about it.

In the first place, Lucas would never have tried it if he didn't think he could put over a sneaker in the second place he was [illegible] with it. He got some of the mob who are still fighting their Chicago feud with Capone make a champ out of him.

They told him he was one bad man and that Capone had been calling him a [illegible] and a yellow dirty [illegible]. They told him how easy it would be for him working in the bathroom alongside Capone to work over the greaseball.

So Lucas made the play, never intending, I'd bet a slab of Sunday pie, to dump Capone. He was just going through the motions to make people think that maybe he was as tough as he was.

He got a pair of straps from the [illegible] and he took the Rock to see as a ship or as they say in a [illegible] business.

SNEAKED UP

He [illegible] Capone as A [illegible] and [illegible] Lucas standing behind Al with his arm raised, ready to give him the business.

Sandy's mouth flew open and his [illegible] must have [illegible] Capone. With [illegible] Al jumped up and swung around and ducked the business without even dropping his banjo. And before Lucas could make an [illegible] Al had [illegible] Lucas [illegible] Sanders stopped.

[illegible] Al had [illegible] was just [illegible] dump Al with [illegible] Lucas [illegible] Al [illegible] back to his [illegible].

"The DOCTOR" by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Death Keeps Chris From Lewis Party

CHAPTER 11

It was [illegible] a trying day that Chris met Annie Lewis in the hospital [illegible] a short meeting, and found her holding out her hand.

"Why Dr. Arden!" she said. "Have you deserted us entirely? Or was I not worth any attraction?"

She was smiling, and he tried to smile back.

"I've been terribly busy. I'm sorry."

"But you will come," she persisted, her handsome eyes upon him. "After all we are almost neighbors, aren't we? Come and dine with us something. You look as if you need it, don't you?"

"On my own. You'd be surprised to know how often I do."

That was all, but he moved off feeling that he would not come and that after all perhaps Beverly had been right. There was a stubborn set to his mouth now, and he looked definitely grim, as if life had been [illegible] things to him. As indeed it had.

But there was [illegible] after he left the hospital. His head was [illegible] and his eyes [illegible] not watch them.

The days passed until Christmas. The [illegible] from the Depot [illegible] day by day and there was a slow but steady [illegible] of this private [illegible].

One morning, [illegible] his books made the [illegible] discovery that [illegible] date were [illegible] in the office [illegible] the face with [illegible] expression.

It was true. Miss Andrews, the spinster from [illegible] unattractive [illegible] level that she was [illegible] desire and [illegible] many men she saw the [illegible] in day after day [illegible] almost [illegible] a [illegible] from her [illegible] women [illegible] women [illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible] life.

ALWAYS WOMEN!

He was [illegible] He discovered [illegible] as for [illegible] and [illegible] women [illegible] from [illegible] desk [illegible] women [illegible] him [illegible] and hopeful eyes. Women.

Old and young, attractive or [illegible] always women.

He pulled himself [illegible] After all, that was the [illegible] and a reason for [illegible] men of women. [illegible] was wanted was [illegible] care. To [illegible] one for them [illegible] and [illegible] there. [illegible] monster and [illegible] in his own house.

They were [illegible] Katie [illegible] the [illegible] Arden [illegible] the [illegible] their six [illegible] and [illegible] them [illegible].

It seemed a long [illegible] he [illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible] when he [illegible] was all there was [illegible] Beverly [illegible] and [illegible] Lewis [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible].

For the [illegible] had brought him a [illegible] of [illegible] formal [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lewis [illegible] the pleasure of [illegible] Christmas Eve Dinner [illegible] at 8 o'clock.

Katie had gone to school and Lily was in the kitchen. He was alone at the [illegible] the [illegible] ing the card over [illegible] and [illegible] to go was to surrender [illegible] why not surrender?

Why not accept the [illegible] in Annie Lewis' handsome eyes? Why not even see Beverly, again, if only to realize how [illegible] she was? Why oh why not go somehow and damn Lewis and all his works!

He was enormously [illegible] after that, going up the stairs two steps at a time, running over his shirts and ties, getting out his evening clothes and [illegible] them around to Jake Brenning for inspection and alteration. [illegible] later put the coat on him and then eyed him.

"Well, I'll fix it up, Doctor. It won't be good, but it will be better."

He was always to remember Jake like that, with his head on one side and his tape measure slung around his neck, a [illegible] little man with a wife and home he adored, and a canary singing in the window of the shop.

The day before Christmas found Chris rather complacent, especially after Jake that morning had returned his rejuvenated evening clothes. They looked better than he had expected and he hung them up with care, to turn and find Katie in the doorway watching him.

"So you're going out into society tonight," she said.

"How do you know that?"

"I saw the card."

The card, as he knew by [illegible] bureau drawer under his [illegible] handkerchiefs, and he looked at her.

"NOT YOUR CHILD"

"I thought I'd asked you to [illegible] my things alone, my child," he said severely.

"Well, good heavens, somebody's got to straighten them for you! And I'm not your child. I am nothing to you!"

She whirled and went out, leaving him in a state of acute discomfort and revolt. But later on, in the day in a burst of remorse and Christmas feeling, he went to the house a small Christmas tree and a box of trimmings.

Then, still under the spell, he bought a pair of slippers for each of them, saw them tied up with ribbon, and sent them with his card. "To a happier Christmas next year," he wrote in the [illegible]

LOVE PROMPTS DOUBT and Katie Walters, turning from the Christmas tree and gifts, asks Doctor Arden: "Why do you do this for us? We're no good, and you know it. Why don't you kick us out?"

[illegible] Walters and did not realize [illegible] had [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Don't Take This Girl Seriously

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a young man 20 years of age and have been going out with a girl who is seven years older than I am. We see a great deal of each other because we both enjoy good music, reading, the theater and several hours in the past month. She doesn't object to my attentions, but I don't want to be.

When I began to date her she was going with an older man visiting them. He comes to see her every week and I never go there, for this reason. [illegible] doesn't know she sees me. If he finds out he may break with her and she doesn't want that. She has been married 11 years and has been married after a year. She doesn't want to lose anyone at present time.

HOPPELL.

The young man who has been married and separated from her husband strikes me as having enough experience to manage a couple of old-timers. Sometimes a little dodging like this is very helpful to a boy, but I hope you won't let her keep more or less by that one taken you.

Appreciative Thank You Notes Easy to Write

DEAR MRS. HEPPENHAM:

My friends and neighbors are generous, a baby shower for me. I would like to write a note of thanks and appreciation. Should I send each person a word of thanks or just one note of thanks to the club, which is to have the party?

READER.

Yes, several words or especially effective note of thanks to the club who gave the party for you. And then you should write a little note of thanks to each kind friend who brought you a shower present.

You write to the hostess might be worded [illegible] to this:

Dear Mary:

Thank you for your generosity and gave for giving me shower for me yesterday and for the really charming party that you gave. You were a perfect hostess and it was a memory-making party I wish I could tell you how happy you made me.

You're a grand friend, Mary.

Let's have a date soon, to talk over all the delightful details of the party. Do say when

Dearest love to [illegible] thanks to you.

Affectionately,

Gates Back To College

all (meaning the college officials) for your many kindnesses. I want you to know I'm sorry to have caused so much trouble."

Gates' mother, Mrs. Elder Gates, at her home in Saugus, was informed of ... decision by the Boston Evening American. She received the news calmly.

MOTHER VERY HAPPY

"Thank you very much," she said.

Asked if that was all she wished to say, she replied:

"Well, I'm very happy at the news. Thank you very much."

She told the Boston Evening American yesterday that her health was none too good and that she was considering going to ... for a rest.

... Hunt, head of the Hill House at Amherst, accompanied young Gates to Attorney Davis' home in Manchester.

Attorney Davis said:

"Gates asked me to do my best to let the public know that these people (the "Holy Ghost and Us" cult members) really are very decent people. That is my own impression of them.

"If they have a queer-sounding name for their sect, and if some of their beliefs are unusual, that is their privilege—the right of freedom of religion as American citizens.

"Mr. Holland is accompanying Gates back to Dartmouth."

HE FINALLY DECIDES

... I told Gates to him that he ... his college ... to his future ministry, or whatever it is to be, just as much as a doctor, say, owes his medical education to his patients," Davis said.

"It was then, I think, that he began to reconsider. He told me he could not give me a final answer then, but I left the farm with a feeling I had accomplished something towards helping him solve his problem.

"Later, when he came to my home and told me he had decided to go back to school, I tell you it was one of the most satisfying experiences of my life."

Davis quoted Gates as saying:

"I'm through with football I'm going back, but I'll never play football again.

"Last year I made the same resolution, but this time I am going to keep it.

"When I went back to school this September I thought I had put the game out of my mind. After all, I had played for nine years. I felt I could be content with that.

"I had been back only a short time, however, when the fellows started urging me to come out for the team. I don't blame them. They simply didn't understand, that all. I love Dartmouth. They kept urging me—urging me not to 'let Dartmouth down.' All that sort of thing.

AN UNHAPPY STAR

"Well, I played. And we won. But all the time I was playing and afterward, I was unhappy. I would never play again. I didn't walked off the field determined I say anything to anybody, but I was all sick inside.

"Sunday I simply couldn't stand it any more. I was thinking, thinking, thinking. I felt I simply had to get away somewhere where I could think it all out for myself. The one place I thought of was Mr. Holland's home—the farm. They are good people, and kind. They would leave me alone, help me if they could, I knew.

"He was sympathetic and helpful. Neither he nor anyone else at the farm urged me one way or the other. That wasn't what I wanted. I wanted to be left alone."

Maestro Avoids 'Duel'

By RUTH MARSTERS

Among the many requirements for the post of artistic director of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, wit and tact are at the least important.

That Leonide Massine is equipped with both is evident from the manner in which he dismissed the most recent crisis in the turbulent career of the company which presented itself when dancer Serge Lifar made colorful the New York engagement by challenging the director or to a duel in Central Park.

Said Massine to Lifar:

"What you need is an aspirin."

In an interview at the Copley brief comment on the "affair d'honneur" was accompanied by a shrug.

"I have fought many duels on the stage, but never one in Central Park. I should dislike appearing anywhere as an amateur."

'Brother Rat'--'Service De Luxe' Reviewed by Peggy Doyle

Eddie Albert Steals Honors In Comedy Hit

By PEGGY DOYLE

When more convincing boy [illegible] comes to the screen Warner Brothers will make them. What is to say that Jimmy Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane is as delightful a picture as the Paramount and Fenway screens have given this season.

Morris and Miss Lane were that way as Messrs. Wingfield's little boy Walter would put it during the filming of Brother Rat, which may have given them screen romance enough for neither has had much experience in screen wooing in their brief film careers.

Despite their obvious [illegible] it is Eddie Albert, playing the role that won him [illegible] stage production of Brother Rat, who runs away with honors.

Albert is married [illegible] a recurrent line in Brother Rat. "This is very unorthodox." As a matter here he is very orthodox indeed. But willy-nilly on the [illegible] of Brother Rat. Every instant he is on the screen, [illegible] your and your attention. [illegible] is a simply delightful and unexpectedness about [illegible] that is attention-getting. They have fun and the [illegible] play carefully without [illegible] it to interfere with [illegible] technique. Their Brother [illegible] a fast-paced, [illegible] and [illegible] entertaining [illegible] autographed film.

Constance Bennett Wins Laurels at Keith Memorial

Broadway's latest threat to Hollywood's glamour boys, Vincent Price, is definitely condescending to cinema-queen Constance Bennett in Universal's "Service De Luxe," which marks his screen debut. It is this week's feature on the Keith Memorial screen.

Of course, the script calls for a properly aloof attitude on the part of Mr. Price's screen hero but enough is enough. Although your reviewer has never been one of Miss Bennett's admirers, the time has come to give the little lady a great big hand for an excellent acting job and a perfectly swell appearance.

For once (we're probably prejudiced) she is not dominated by her wardrobe, which is really something, girls. Her Helen Murphy is a thoroughly human characterization, at times utterly irresistible and at others a 100 per cent temptation to do some neck-wringing.

Mr. Price, who is almost too beautiful, was pretty irresistible himself as Albert to Helen Hayes' "Victoria Regina" for two sensationally successful years. We were looking forward to something pluperfect from him in his initial picture. 'Service De Luxe' but Hollywood has foiled us again.

Perhaps, the next time the producers will give him his proper acting rating worth and assign him to a picture worthy of his talents.

"Service De Luxe" has assembled some of the screen's finest talent—Helen Broderick, Mischa Auer, Charlie Ruggles, Joy Hodges and Hallwell Hobbes—but it sold them up the river with a script that is largely tripe.

Our dour-faced darling, Mischa Auer, as a down-and-out Romanoff turned chef, is the best of this bad bargain.

Helen Broderick, Miss Bennett's partner in the Dorothy MacAlison service bureau, is never surprised, rarely lacking a priceless wise-crack and always exciting. Charlie Ruggles as a business tycoon with a passion for bending over the hot stove in an orgy of cooking is swell.

British King Lauds Peace Try By Roosevelt

LONDON, Nov. 4 (INS)—A striking reference to President Roosevelt's powerful influence for peace during the recent European crisis was made today in King George's speech proroguing the British parliament.

The speech, read in the House of Lords by a royal commissioner, was devoted to a lengthy review of the European war scare which the king said, he had followed with deep anxiety.

Delivery of the speech followed action of the House of Commons late last night in overwhelmingly defeating a Laborite motion to censure the government for its tardy preparation Britain against possible air raids.

The 355 to 130 vote rejecting the motion climaxed an exciting parliamentary debate from which Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain emerged victorious in his policy of European appeasement.

After reviewing the circumstances leading to the crisis the King said:

"The cause of peace was powerfully aided by the timely action of the President of the U. S. A.

"The desire of all peoples not to be drawn into war with one another was manifest and significant and everywhere men and women share with me, I am convinced, a deep feeling of thankfulness that the imminent peril was averted.

"I pray that with the passing of this peril a new era may be opened for Europe."

Legion Week Set By Gov. Hurley

Next week was designated as "American Legion Week" today by Governor Charles F. Hurley, with a recommendation that it be "appropriately observed by all veterans and true American citizens. The occasion is the 20th anniversary of the close of the World War.

Failure of trading to pick up markedly in the next session or two will be somewhat unsettling and probably forecast a delay in the expected advance.

Since we have been holding to a conservatively bullish policy here right along there is no need to suggest further expansion of long holdings.

The rails themselves should do well in an extension of the upturn and the steel group is now in a good position to resume the burden of leading the

CG & E Accused Of Monopoly

WASHINGTON, Nov 4 (INS)—The federal government today accused the giant Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation power of unfair monopolizing the commerce in natural gas over a large area including the states of Ohio, Michigan Kentucky and West Virginia.

In a suit filed in the federal district court at Wilmington, Del. the justice department complained that the corporation, its officers and directors, and the Warfield Natural Gas Co. a subsidiary had engaged in a conspiracy to restrain trade since 1930.

HOURLY
PLAY-BY-PLAY IN THE STOCK MARKET

The stock market dawdled around today after a firm start and many recent trading favorites reacted in a minor way. Motors were in fair demand during dull proceedings.

10-11 Small advances were well distributed in opening business. Steels, motors and rails all bettered in moderately weight trading. The last appeared to be running into offerings however and shortly began backing from. Small losses from previous finals soon showed. Motors and steels kept edging forward as the ticker stretched to half [illegible] hour. Coppers were easy and Westinghouse lost close to a point in the first session. Changes were unimportant in both directions. Motors and steels were the notably steady groups while rails and coppers followed an irregular, lower course. Volume for the hour 170,000 shares.

11-12 Some metals were dull stocks edged upward. Westinghouse, Pump, Sharp & Dume and Hudson Wasser were included in such a classification. Despite firming tendencies the market as a whole seemed irregularly lower. Some of the steels began to lag behind with the rails and coppers. Electrical equipments has slipped a notch. Buying of motors continued in sufficient volume to give this [illegible] something of an irregular look. Trading was very slow and uninteresting for the most part. Transactions reached 340,000 shares.

12-1 Prices continued to shift over a narrow range. Ticker performance remained with the groups favored earlier while the same backsliders were forced to submit with profit taking. Columbia G & E was heavy and in word of the municipals suit by the government. It was drawn over a point at one time subsequent support caused the loss to contract. There was no new change of as much as a point that lasted for very long. We [illegible] after being [illegible] and [illegible] up that much [illegible] slightly. Volume 340,000 shares.

Answer to College Boy Who Wants to Fight

JACK SHARKEY, the old terrestrial fisticuffer who is sticking his finger in state political pie, showed me a letter from a college boxer today. The kid yearns to make chin-busting a career. His parents, as polite people with a natural horror of the nauseous science, refuse permission. Can you please advise me, Mr. Sharkey?

"Can you?" I asked.

"Sure," snorted Jack, "in two little words, 'Forget it'."

AUSTEN LAKE

This is one of the rare occasions when I can agree with Jack. For college boy fighters have never amounted to great shakes in the prize ring. The history of varsity athletes who have turned to the quick rewards of industrial fighting has been conspicuous for their failure and all, after brief success, have gone back to more cautious employment where, if the rates of pay are less, the risks are proportionately diminished.

other agency than pure mistake, so that he is scarcely propped on his corner stool before he screams to try conclusions all over again, at the same guarantee and an option on the gate.

But your college fighter is apt to arise and admit courteously that his rival packed a convincing wallop and make mental resolve never again to be so presumptuous as to enter the ring with his better. Being schooled in social economics, he figures the risks overbalance the rewards.

Henry LaMar Reasoned It Out

THERE IS A THIRD AND MORE VITAL aspect. The graduate fighter is likely to find that text-book concentration and the laborious habit of careful reasoning has slowed down his animal reflexes. So, as he adds layers of formal learning, reflex action becomes less a matter of instinct and, hence, less of an electric impulse.

I am quick to say, before you do, that this line of argument is pretty abstract. But the originator of the theory is Henry LaMar, the present Harvard boxing coach, who surrendered his pro fight career some years ago for these same convictions.

He found that a man could not be successful both as a thinker and a fighter. Because, he says, while he was thinking something clever, his alley character opponent was fetching him a resounding clout which, maybe, knocked out both liver and lights.

After much meditation, Henry decided that the alley character was not handicapped by habitual thinking of thoughts in their chronological order, but just fired his shots by impulse without analyzing the message as it flew between eye, brain and muscle.

So, after taking his share of punishment and brooding over why it was that educated people with diplomas couldn't outwit these primitive products, Henry decided that the latter did not rely on wit, but operated from sheer jungle reflex. Which, as a student of physio-electricity, Henry knew was faster than conscious thought and therefore twice as lethal. So he quit.

AM I ARGUING THAT ANY DUMB lunky can, by the absence of brains, make a brilliant business fighter? I am not. He must, of course, have the physical endowments. But I do argue that, by taking two alley urchins of equal age, muscle and bone; allowing one to develop in the usual club-fighter's environment and subjecting the other to intensive education and the same systematic fight training, the tough monkey will make a success of pugilism where the collegian will fail.

And, lest you point to Fidel LaBarba, the former flyweight champion, or the late Willie Stribling, as examples of college bred pugs, I will answer that neither LaBarba nor Stribling matriculated until after they attained their prize ring heights. And neither amounted to much afterward.

And what about Bob Pastor, the ex-N. Y. U. heavyweight? I would say that he is making a leisurely box-office failure via the peck dab and duck route. And I will wager you something small that, within two years, he, among the last of the corn-fed collegians, will drift back to more cautious endeavor where he can keep his brains intact.

CONTINUE RACING REVENUE

REVENUE FROM RACING AMOUNTS TO MORE THAN $2,000,000.00 ANNUALLY, ABOUT ONE-HALF OF WHICH COMES FROM DOG RACING. THE NET REVENUE FROM RACING IS SET ASIDE BY LAW FOR OLD AGE ASSISTANCE.

NO ONE IS COMPELLED TO GO TO THE RACES. THEREFORE THIS HUGE REVENUE IS COLLECTED, WITHOUT ANY COMPULSION IN CONNECTION WITH AN AFTERNOON'S OR EVENING'S ENTERTAINMENT.

OLD AGE PENSIONS MUST BE CONTINUED. IT WOULD SEEM TO BE ONLY SOUND COMMON SENSE TO SEE TO IT THAT THIS HUGE REVENUE FROM RACING IS PRESERVED FOR OLD AGE PENSIONS, PARTICULARLY AS ITS LOSS WOULD MEAN EITHER AN INCREASED TAX ON ALREADY OVERBURDENED REAL ESTATE AFFECTING BOTH THE HOME OWNER AND THE RENT PAYER, OR AN ADDITIONAL GAS TAX OR A SALES TAX FALLING MOST HEAVILY ON THOSE LEAST ABLE TO BEAR IT.

Traffic brought about by racing in Suffolk County has helped in paying for the East Boston tunnel and has aided in reducing the Elevated deficit.

Dog racing has been endorsed by the Boston Central Labor Union, the Building and Construction Trades Council of Boston and vicinity, and by affiliated bodies.

FOR WOMEN ONLY

Your sweetheart or your husband, your brother or your father already overburdened with taxes, must pay MORE if the vast amount of revenue from racing is taken away. Everybody will fight for Old Age Pensions but we must have the revenue from dog and horse racing so that the burden may not be too great for us to bear.

Peabody Favored to Whip Waite

Somerville Renews War With Malden

Peabody High will be a slight favorite to maintain its undefeated record when the Tanners battle Waite High of Toledo, Ohio, in an intersectional game at the Buckley Stadium tonight.

In the first game played with the Tanners, Waite pushed through to a victory while the second game ended in a scoreless deadlock.

Coach Bill Seeglitz' club that has rung up six straight victories will present the same line-up with the exception of the fullback slot where Ralph St. Paul will fill in for the ailing Ed Surman.

The all-star backfield will include, with St. Paul, Ernie Blair, Johnny Rezemes and Chris Brady. This group represents a powerhouse offensive that mixes deception with a fine passing attack that promises plenty of action.

LINE AVERAGES 185 POUNDS

The line, with Carl Wettergreen as acting captain at a tackle slot, averages 185 pounds from end to end, with speed and drive that rivals the best in schoolboy ranks.

Don Ritzenthaler, hailed as one of Ohio's leading triple threat schoolboys, will lead the Waite high attack. Last year, he displayed flashes of greatness against the Tanners and now with these rough spots ironed out, he will be the one to stop. Ritzenthaler is a fine passer and a deceptive kicker. His quick kicks carry 40 to 50 yards to make this department one of Waite's best ground gaining mediums.

Coach Jack Molienkoph intends to hold Jim Reese, colored sensation, in reserve.

MALDEN VS. SOMERVILLE

Over at the Pearl Street Stadium a pair of undefeated teams clash as Malden plays host to Somerville in the feature game of Saturday's card.

Coach Art McManus will field his strongest club of the year in this tilt with Carl Lucas and Leno Ferrarini returning to the lineup to team with Sophomore Art Rego, whom Somerville critics claim to be the best prospect on the squad.

Malden, though tied twice, has looked like one of the outstanding teams in the state as it rolled through its schedule and promises to pin the first defeat on the Somerville clan.

Waltham and Medford meet in another of the outstanding grid frays listed for tomorrow.

Coach Jack Leary's Watch City teams have played Medford 14 times since 1920 and have only been victorious in four of these while dropping five—the remainder were ties.

Last season, the clubs battled to a two touchdown deadlock and tomorrow's tilt promises to provide just as many thrills.

Everett should get back on the winning side of the slate against Revere at the Everett Stadium.

Brown Veterans To Play in Bowl

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 4 (AP)—Brown's final preparations for tomorrow's game with Yale consisted of another long drill on aerial offence and defence, an assignment workout for linemen and a signal drill. Spirit ran high and the indications are that the Bears will be in fine fettle for the Bowl contest.

A veteran contingent has been named to start against the Bulldogs. Johnny Prodgers and Joe Finkelstein will be at the ends with George Larkowich and Don McNeil, tackles; Spencer Madrodt and George Mawhinney, guards, and Tom Carey, center. The backfield will have John McLaughry, quarterback; Captain Larry Atwell and John O'Leary, halfbacks, and Irving "Shine" Hall, fullback.

The Bruins left for New Haven today. They plan a brief warm-up session in the Bowl soon after their arrival. The traveling squad numbers 34 players, a group that will include six ends, five tackles, five guards, three centers and 15 backs.

Danno Tackles The Shadow

Dan O'Mahony, Irish strong boy and former world heavyweight champion, has signed to meet The Shadow, mystery man of the mat, in the main bout of Promoter Paul Bowser's all star tournament at the Boston Garden, Thursday night, November 17.

The match will be over the two falls in three distance, and while he made no definite promises, Promoter Paul Bowser intimated that the winner will be given immediate consideration for a title bout.

Danno has recovered from the injury received in his St. Louis bout with Ali Baba.

Tufts at Full Strength For Wildcat Contest

By MURRAY KRAMER

It's Home Coming Day at Medford tomorrow and Tufts, still seeking its first victory, plays host to the University of New Hampshire, an outfit that has only one win to its credit.

Both clubs have had a poor season, which fact has failed to arouse the spirit of grid fans. Yet it's apt to be a whale of a game.

Neither Lew Manly nor George Sauer give up with a losing ball team. In fact, both coaches are out to salvage what they can for the remainder of the year and each has victory aspirations.

Tufts will be at full strength with the return of Ted Hazleton, sophomore tackle, who had his leg wrenched in the Brown game. It appeared earlier in the week that Ted would be out for ten days but he is back in uniform and ready to go.

With the Jumbos in good shape, Lew Manly will have his boys hold anything in reserve for nothing would please him better than to score his first victory.

Lew is banking mainly on Art Griffin who has developed into a classy back and right at present is the real offensive threat in the Tufts machine.

War Admiral At Gansett

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Nov. 4 (AP)—Samuel D. Riddle's War Admiral, famed four-year-old son of Man o' War, reached Narragansett Park this morning after an overnight trip from Pimlico where on Tuesday he bowed to C. S. Howard's Seabiscuit.

War Admiral was shipped here to run in the $10,000 added Rhode Island Handicap to be run on the local track November 12.

War Admiral apparently shipped well. Trainer George Conway escorted him to the stall provided for him and said that he would not go on the track until tomorrow morning.

He reiterated his statements in Maryland earlier in the week that he "would like another shot" at Seabiscuit.

Waite High Coach Issues Warning to Boston College

For the first time in the annals of football, there'll be two "Big Ten" elevens, Indiana and Chicago, in our midst before sundown . . . Compared to the assignment that the Eagles will tackle (Indiana), Harvard has a push-over in Chicago . . . Coach Jack Mollenkopf, who is here with his Waite High School squad to meet Peabody tonight under the lights, believes that Bo McMillin's Hoosier outfit will battle B. C. down to the final whistle . . . He said that Indiana is a sophomore team, which is liable to start clicking any time . . . Tuss McLaughry took time off from his Brown squad to attend last night's Gridiron Club meeting at the Lenox . . . Under Coach Earl Larden, former University of New Hampshire player, Turner Falls High School has won 27, tied 5 and lost only two games in 3¼ seasons . . . Bill Cowell, athletic director at the University of New Hampshire, is at the Emerson Hospital for a check up . . . Phil Wogan, son of the famous "Skip" of the Essex County Club, has transferred from North Carolina State to Penn State, where he is studying forestry and soil erosion . . . After ten weeks in a hospital, Nancy Corcoran, daughter of the M. G. A. secretary and state handicapper, is back home . . . She'll be confined to her bed for another month . . . The Rhode Island Reds have entered into a working agreement with the Chicago Black Hawks . . . Coach Bun Cook has Ab De Marco, Harold Jackson and Phil Besler on loan from the Windy City club . . . George Jacobus, president of the P. G. A., tells me that the WPA has erected a new beach at Sarasota, Fla. . . . Tony Manero, Salem, and Denny Shute, Brae Burn, both turned down offers to be the playing pro at a Hollywood, Fla., golf club . . . On his first start in N. H. L. competition, Frankie Brimsek turned in a 3 to 2 victory over the Maple Leafs, when Jack Portland scored the winning goal . . . Until it took them 14 to 0 about a fortnight ago, Oklahoma hadn't beaten the Nebraska Cornhuskers in five years . . . Marty Higgins, pro at the Fall River Country Club, should make a very efficient president for the New England Professional Golfers' Association . . . Freddie Corcoran, the tournament manager of the P. G. A., and Elmer Ward, former New England amateur golf champion, flew over from New York today for the week-end.

AP Expert Picks B. C., Pitt, H. C.

Taking a running leap off a 100-foot springboard, the Associated Press football prognosticator hits the bottom of the tank and comes up, gasping, with the following remarks about this week's program:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA-CALIFORNIA—Since their opening shellacking by Alabama, So. California's Trojans have acted like the old rock-crushers Howard Jones used to turn out at Los Angeles. Yet there is no use discounting California's habit of winning the tough ones. This game will all but settle the Pacific Coast Conference championship, and the ballot, after excessive cogitation, goes to California.

SYRACUSE-COLGATE—Nobody has scored on Colgate yet via a pass, and that's Syracuse's main stock in trade. This may be the year for the Orange to break an ancient jinx, but this corner takes Colgate.

NORTHWESTERN-WISCONSIN—Northwestern's upset of Minnesota makes it impossible to concede Wisconsin a chance to do more than make it close.

PITT-CARNEGIE—A psychologist would say that if Pitt is to be beaten, this is the spot for it. Nobody suggests, however, that Goldberg, Stebbins, Cassiano, et al., will be stopped by phychology. Pitt.

NAVY-NOTRE DAME: The Tars tarred.

MICHIGAN-PENN: Michigan.

BOSTON COLLEGE-INDIANA: Close enough but Indiana has scored only eight points all season. Boston College.

COLUMBIA-VIRGINIA: Columbia scheduled this as a "breather" but, with Luckman out, it probably will be close. Columbia.

FORDHAM-ST. MARY'S: Fordham, in the expectation that the Ram will have recovered from the physical beating they took at Pittsburgh.

HARVARD-CHICAGO: Harvard, handily.

HOLY CROSS-TEMPLE: These Crusaders are tough. Holy Cross.

RUTGERS-PRINCETON: Football's oldest rivals renew their rivalry, and it probably will be close. Princeton.

VILLANOVA-AUBURN: What's happened to Auburn's punch? Villanova.

YALE-BROWN: Out of the well-known fedora, Brown.

MNNESOTA-IOWA: Minnesota.

WASHINGTON STATE-U. C. L. A.: State has lost five successive Conference games, U. C. L. A. seldom runs in the north. That gets you nowhere. U. C. L. A.

STANFORD-WASHINGTON: An extremely slight nod to Stanford.

MR. BOSTON

Indiana's Eleven Ready to Click

Bob James Looks Like Real "Find"

By JACK CONWAY

INDIANA UNIVERSITY'S football team is likely to come through with one of its best games against Boston College in their clash at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon . . . Indiana has tremendous latent football power, and if it gets clicking against Gil Dobie's team there will be plenty of excitement.

Mr. Boston

Boston College has had a successful football season to date, and if it can win over Indiana, it can look forward to its battle with Holy Cross with confidence . . . Indiana is a member of the "Big Ten" Conference, and its game with Boston College marks another step in the progress of the Eagles in football schedules.

Indiana is receiving a guarantee of $15,000 . . . Graduate Manager John Curley of Boston College felt that the importance of the game justified this guarantee, and he believes that one of the largest crowds of the season to see Boston College in action will be on hand for the Indiana game . . . The Indiana band is a show by itself, and it will be at Fenway Park.

Harvard should continue to improve against the University of Chicago on Saturday . . . There has been a steady advance at Cambridge this fall . . . Dick Harlow's team should reach its peak for the Yale game on November 19 . . . Eighteen-year-old Bob James, Harvard sophomore who looked so brilliant against the Army, will be in there throwing forward passes against Chicago . . . This youngster should go a long ways along the footbal trails.

Pat Hanley refuses to become discouraged as a result of early Boston University reverses, and is getting his players ready for their game with Tampa tomorrow . . . Boston University had the misfortune to play the Army this year . . . That game took much out of the squad physically and mentally . . . It would be better for colleges like Boston University to pass up games with teams like the Army.

West Point has too much material and athletic resources for the average run of colleges . . . Even the Irish of Notre Dame had to use every football trick at their command to win from the Army in a smashing finish . . . Hanley is pointing his eleven for its game with Boston College . . . A win over Boston College would cause Hanley to forget about his earlier setbacks.

George Funk on Dog Racing

GEORGE FUNK, who has been active in the affairs of Wonderland Park, is now busy getting various ice rinks ready for the winter . . . Funk has built the rinks at the Boston and New York Gardens, and at most of the other indoor sport palaces . . . He is still finding time to say a few words about dog racing that goes on the ballot at the state election on next Tuesday.

"I am sure that the people of Massachusetts will vote in favor of dog racing," said Funk . . . "The sport has been conducted on as high a plane in this state as it has in England and in Ireland . . . The voters are not going to kill the goose that is laying the golden egg . . . Why should any sensible person vote to take away the huge revenue the state gets from dog racing, and which goes for old age assistance? . . . Everybody also knows that if there isn't racing in Massachusetts that the money this state now gets will go to New Hampshire or to Rhode Island.

"Racing has already contributed more than $3,500,000 to old age assistance . . . Other millions have been spent for local taxes, construction, wages and other items that have benefited the community.

"I believe the public is showing interest in the racing referendum . . . This will benefit dog and horse racing . . . If the public were indifferent to all the money state, city and town treasuries have received from racing it would not be so good for the future of the sport . . . I believe the various tracks have reason to be proud of the fine manner in which racing has been conducted in this state . . . Even the enemies of racing have not been able to a place finger on a single scandal during a four-year period."

Random Shots at Target

THE SONJA HENIE show will be moved into the Garden early in January . . . The "Ice Follies of 1939" will also play an engagement at the Garden . . . The latter show was rehearsed at Atlantic City during the summer months . . . The Boston Skating Club is rushing construction on its new rink, and expects it will be open by December . . . Meanwhile members of the Boston Skating Club are working out at the Arena.

The Silver Skates Derby of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser will be staged again during the coming winter . . . This has become one of the ice classics of New England . . . The finals, as has been the case during the past two years, will be held at the Garden . . . The date for the Silver Skates Derby will be announced later . . . Major league hockey will open at the Garden next Tuesday when the Bruins return home.
